STUDENT MEN'S COUNCIL FORMED AT KY. IN 1922

Formed on Recommendation of University of Iowa

IS NOW POWERLESS

to Devise a Better Plan

At n meeting of the Men's Student Council of the University of Ken-tucky held Thursday, March 19, in Dean Boyd's office, it was decided that the Council would adjourn indefinite-ly, due to the fact that it "had no power hy which it could enforce the regulations deemed necessary for the fulfillment of its trust as representatives of the desires of the student body."

In 1921, the deans and advisors of several universities met at the University of Iowa and recommended to the universities and colleges who had representatives present that since all faculty government was not good for these institutions, nor was all student government, a cooperative plan would perhaps meet the needs. According to this recommendation the students of the University of Kentucky met in 1922 and the Men's Student Council was organized, adopting the present constitution, slightly

The purpose of the Council, as stated in the preamble of the con-stitution is to "secure an effective form of student government in ac-cordance with the authority granted by the Senate to the Student Council." The powers embody those of the discipline of undergraduates, the social calendar of the university and the penalties for the violation of all

After a thorough investigation, the members of the Council found that several students were not complying with the rule of wearing the freshman caps, and that they were "powerless to enforce the regulations prescribed by the students of the university." Their adjournment followed

Since this action was taken, these men have met with Doctor McVey, Dean Melcher and Dean Turck to discuss the situation and it was de-cided that a committee from the Stu-dent Council ment with one from the dent Council meet with one from the faculty as soon as possible to de-vise some means of meeting the de-mind for a governing body.

Discusses Restoration Difficulties in Europe

Miss Sarah Wambaugh, who was a member of the Secretariat of the League of Nations, took "Six Years After" as the subject of her lecture Friday afternoon, March 20, at Patterson Hall.

In discussing the restoration of territory taken from Polnnd a few decades ago, and at present inhabited by the Germans, Miss Wambaugh pointed out the difficulties of dealing with the minority. In such matters as these and other re-ndjustments of frontiers, the lecturer stated that plebiscides had been resorted to.

Mss Wambaugh's work was in the minority field and she has written a book on the subject of "plebiscides."

WHEN SHALL KENTUCKY GO FORWARD?

It is not possible for us to believe that there is any citizen in the proud old Commonwealth of Kentucky who deep down in his own heart does not want to see this state go forward, and wet there are a few of those who have considerable power who are not willing to place the best interest of Kentucky and her institutions above their own personal interests and the interest which they represent.

It seems that they are given to make a sacrifice of the big things in order to promote things that have no material benefit to the state as a whole. How much longer are we to permit these gentlemen to go on with their quibbling over things of minor importance and give them such a place of importance in our large dailies as to beloud the things for which every Kentuckian should be fighting? A few may be interested in the racing question; another group in a production tax on coal; another seet in evolution, and another in blue sky laws; but for the sake of all right thinking citizens, why can we not all pull together for better educational facilities; better conditions for the unfortunates who are the wards of the state and for better highways? Is it not time to set aside all this puny little talk and publicity concerning the things that do not benefit all and take up the problems which will, if properly solved, put our state near the rank she should hold among the others of the Union?

Dr. Frank L. McVcy, president of the University of Kentucky, in an address before the Exchange Club of Louisville a short time ago, certainly expressed what should be the sentiment of every loyal Kentuckian when he

"We have resources, enormous resources that might be developed in this commonwealth, there are industries in the eastern part of the state, industries in the great cities, and industries in various places. Emphasis is also laid upon Kentucky as a great agricultural state; and yet there isn't any central agency to take these matters into consideration. Are we doing anything, other than here and there in individual communities, toward the building up of a great organization where all sorts of economic questions coming before u may be considered; questions of education, questions dealing with matters of illiteracy, dependency and public health. The answer is not encouraging. There is no great central agency that emphasizes the importance of these things and that keeps them constantly before the publie. The state board of health does the best that it can, but it is handicapped because there isn't any body of business men and women, of people interested, that are building up a body of public opinion interested in the various things that should be done in the commonwealth.

"When we turn to another phase of the problem we find that there are groups here and there and elsewhere that are engaged in defending the position which they occupy. For insance, the farmers are saying their ta are too high, and they are looking for some way to take the taxes off their lands and put them on something else. The coal mining concerns feel that they must defend themselves against any unjust imposition; and there are other groups that are engaged in building up organizations, political organizations in partcular. The result is that we have a commonwealth that is divided into political camps that are hostile to each other and there is no pulling together. The people in the field of education hold conferences to talk over educational matters, thus stressing the importance of education and the necessity of larger expenditures, and they comment upon the difficulties with which they are confronted. That is only a part of it; the educational people can't get anywhere, they can't really produce any results, they can't make progress until all the factors in the whole state get together in a program of progress."

In this address the President of the highest public educational institution in the commonwealth has laid down the challenge to every citizen of the state to act in the future in accordance with our motto, "UNITED WE STAND; DIVIDED WE FALL," and to be boosters boosting for Kentucky first, and this means the Purchase as well as the Blue Grass and the Mountains as well as the Pennyroyal. It ought to be a well known fact that there more people living in western Kentucky read papers from St. Louis, Evansville and Chicago than those who read Kentucky papers; and those living in the northern most part of our state know more about Ohio and Ohio's problems than they do about Kentucky and the people residing along the Big Sandy and along the Ohio river in the northeastern section of the state are in closer touch with Huntington and Ironton and some other out-of-state towns than they are with the villages and towns of the interior of their own commonwealth.

It occurs to us that the principal thing needed is a little educational compaign and further it appears to us that one of the best mediums through which such an awakening could be aroused as to change things as they should be is the public school system. It has been our contention for some time that there should be a conference of the heads of all of the higher institutions for public education in Kentucky for the purpose of not only agree ing on a program for these institutions which they should submit to the legislature and have passed, but to also consider the best methods for advancing our city, county and state government. In these institutions are men who have given their lives to the study of the problems of taxation and other subjects that are most essential to the production of the best govern-ment for the people; then why should we be forced to go longer without their advice and assistance, leaving things of such vital importance to those who know little or nothing about such matters of state and have to act upon them in a hit-or-miss manner, usually miss? It is our candid opinion that a vnst majority of the citizenry of Kentucky would welcome some such leadership and that many other organizations of a civic nature would join in with their strength in an united effort to bring about a new day in Kentucky.

We are prone to think that those who have left the borders of the grand old commonwealth and have taken up their dwelling place elsewhere believe '22, with the Northwestern Mutual that "Once a Kentuckian," and that wherever they Life Insurance Company, was elected that "Once a Kentuckian—Always a Kentuckian, and that wherever the life Insurance Company, was elected are it is their duty to pull for their former state and point to her past with pride. This is an excellent spirit and a bit of the same feeling planted in mailed to the Alumni office certainly the minds of us who remain would be better for the state. The moment that show we were right in our choice. All our citizens begin to pull for the things of greatest importance and get away from all factional fights, Kentucky will go forward!

THE GRIDIRON BANQUET

The united George D. Prentice chapter of the Alpha Delta Sigma frater nity of Georgetown College and the Henry Wutterson chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma of the University of Kentucky presented a program at the Gridiron Dinner Monday, March 16, that will long be remembered as one of originality and talent.

The students of Georgetown College and the students of the University of Kentucky, the citlzens of Georgetown and Lexington, joined forces in making the game played in the new busketball building Fridny, March 20 and in naking it probably the meet outstanding game of the season player here. The university and Georgetown College together furnished the floor and one-half of the contestants. These players were cheered on by mingled Georgetown and Lexington rooters. We are glad of this comradeship and fellowship with a sister institution of higher education. We trust that it

In writing of the game, the Lexington Lender snys: "Although they won the game by a margin of seven points, 23 to 16, the Favorite Knits of Cleveland, Ohio, girls' independent basketball champions of the United States, realized in the University of Kentucky gymnasium Friday night that they were faced by a foe worthy of their class and the girls of Georgetown high school, champions of Kentucky, demonstrated even in defeat to of approximately 4,300 persons, the largest ever to attend a basketball game in the state, that their reputation of being "wonders" is truly deserving and in no manner can be justly termed a sobriquet of exaggerated ability."

They are "wonders." We take pride in the fact that the Georgetown girls are Kentucky girls and that they played on our floor.

Ferrell has been connected with several engineering companies until he became connected with his present teams or welcoming former students.

In an expression of appreciation to the Club for the hospitality, Mr. Boles said that he considered the luncheon a decided success because the occasion for presenting letters and numerals previously had been an affnir strikingly lacking in color and having none of the festivity that is usually considered appropriate for the closing of the season for other teams. The Club members agreed that the 1925 luncheon should be the first of an annual party which it is hoped will grow in interest and significance

Regular Luncheon Well Attended; C. Collis is Guest

The regular monthly luncheon of the Buffalo Alumni Club was held on March 14 at the Chamber of Com-Besides the 21 regular members, we were pleased to have with us Mr. Coleman Collis '23, who was passing through Huffalo.

Considerable business was transcted, consisting mostly of reports of ommittees making arrangements for he annual inspection trip of the or Engineers, who are coming to Bufale again this year.

The Senior Engineers coming to Buffalo for the third successive year s very pleasing to all the Buffalo dumni and shows that Buffalo has been found to be an Ideal place for an inspection trip of this kind due to the varled industries. Also, Niagara Falls is only a short distance from Buffalo and gives the students an opportunity to see one of the greatest scenic wonders in the world. While Niagara Falls they will see the largest hydro-electric plant in the world, and in Buffalo several plants will be visited, such as the Larkin Company, one of the largest mail order houses in the country, the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Campany, manufacturers of the finest American made automobile, the American Radintor Company, makers of boilers, radiators, etc., and several other plants of equal interest.

This should be a very instructive trip and as there are other things to onsider besides work, we have planned additional features of entertainment, which we know will be very

UNSEEN FORCES

Swooping down from its hidden cache, leaving behind it a path of inestimable destruction and depriving hundreds of that which man values most, human life, a combination of elements spent their energies through Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky last Wednesday night.

The visit of the tornado was directed by that Supreme Being with whom man has no physical associations. Such catastrophes tend to make man feel his insignificance, his smallness and his absolute inability to cope with the elements. We all know that there is nothing we can do to prevent or in any wise control cyclones.

Ordinarily, when a catastrophe occurs, man begins to seek someone on whom he can directly fix the blame. If a dam bursts, man seeks the engineer who built it; if a ship sinks, man investigates the cause very carefully and attempts to pass laws that will prevent such occurrences in the future, but when the power of God manifests itself, man knows that he is helpless.

A prosperous home, a happy fireside—and suddenly dsolation, ruin, organization is composed of the most death in the wake of elements directed by God—such a comparison active boys and girls on the campus and death in the wake of elements directed by God-such a comparison makes man realize his inability to control his destiny.

There is but one thing man may do after such cataclysms. It is futile for him to wring his hands and say: "Wasn't it awful; but what could I do." Man may alleviate the sufferings caused by such visitations from God. The proper thing to do after such occurrences is to get busy helping those who are directly affected by it.

Of course, we realize that we have no power over floods and tornados, and they bring to us the realization that we have little control concerning 'our fate. Bury the dead, administer to the injured, comfort the sorrowing our fate. Bury the dead, administer to the injured, comfort the sorrowing and get right with God so that should your life be required of you in the same sudden manner, you will not be found unprepared. same sudden manner, you will not be found unprepared.

AS OTHERS SEE US

In a recent publication of an extension of his remarks in the Congress ional Record, Meyer Jacobstein cited among the distinguished American aconomists and sociologists, two names we claim as our own-those of Dr. Edward Wiest and Dr. Charles Turck.

Dean Turck is honored and revered in the college of Law and is a lega authority par excellence throughout the state. His mentality and great of information have always been respected on the campus, but an outside opinion awakens us to the keener consciousness of his worth.

Nor has Dr. Wiest lacked esteem and appresiation from the students in the departments of Sociology and Economics and the graduate school. His intellectuality and broad comprehension of his subjects, his sympathy and interest in the aspirations of the graduate students, have made him the inspiration and ideal of mank whose lives he has touched.

SPRING CLEANING ON THE NEW YORK STAGE

No movement is so difficult to carry through as the reform movement and it is never so effective as when started from within. The fact, then, that the playwrights and actors themselves have started a movement to clean up the New York stage is fraught with significance and hope.

The sentiment opposing unclean and uselessly suggestive plays rose to the breaking point when the leading lady of William Bradley's new play, "The Good Bad Woman," remonstrated with her employer over speaking lines which were revolting to her sense of delicacy. Bradley tried to hold her to her contract and her fellow actors protested, threatening to ostracize him if he did not remove the play from the boards. And Bradley was forced to give in.

The return to realism both in literature and the drnma has been the excuse for the presentation of much that is vulgar and unpleasantly suggestive. Almost every theatrical production now has a sex theme to a greater or lesser degree. The plays "White Cargo" and "Rain" are typical examples of some of the objectional type. It is to be regretted that the return of the romantic drama to the moving pictures has not been carried neaking stage.

Such vulgarity is, of course, not a new thing. Before the age of Victorian repression, the Puritans fought against the corruption of the stage. And so it has been for centuries. Even Shakespeare stooped to pander to the public in that respect. With the advent of Freud and the awakened social sensibilities, the drama reflected the interest in the new type of realism which is so morbidly introspective of the "why" of human motives and actions. The chief aim of most of those plays seems to be to force upon one the unpleasantness of the "seamy" side of life and to rid us of the foolish idea that life is at all decent or kind. It is almost useless as well as dangerous to put the restriction of censorship upon the playwrights themselves and the public is slow to express its opinion by restrictions.

Thus we feel that the best method of reform has been adopted: the voluntary resolution by the actors themselves and some playwrights to give more of the wholesome and to take pride in raising the spirit and tone of their art.

STUDENTS' FORUN

In the March 20 edition of the Kernel a headlne conveys the information that rumors are rife that certain games at the 1925 Kentucky State High Schol Net Meet were not properly refereed and this is followed by an article which infers that the Pikeville-Manual game was, in a sense, "thrown" by the referee. This in ference arises from the "statements" This inof 'certain persons who are alleged to have declared that the referee's whistle did not sound for time-out for Jeffries to shoot two fouls which had been awarded to him.

Now, I did not attend this particugame and must, therefore, be guided by the published statement of these anonymous observers, but I can scarcely comprehend how Jeffries was even allowed to take the free throws unless the referee's whistle sounded at the commission of the foul.

According to the present rule, time out is automatically taken when two free throws are made and the ball does not go into play again unless the foul-thrower is unsuccessful in his econd endeavor.

Now, I have presumed that the timers employed at the tournament were competent in their judgment as to the taking of time out, but if they neglected to do this, it was their neglect and theirs alone, not the referee's whose duty does not include this branch of officiating.

Concerning the division of the tour nament into two brackets, it may appeal to the imagination of those who have propagated the idea to substitute for the city and town principle, one which would comprehend on the one hand those who have come under the "observers'" suspicion and on the other those that are as yet "lily white.'

Carey was elected captain at a luncheon of the Lexington Alumni Association at the Lafayette hotel given in honor of the varsity and freshman basketball players last Saturday afternoon. He is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. Carey suc-ceeds Jimmy McFarland, also of Lexington, as learer of the 'cats.

Letters were awarded to the fol-lowing varsity men by Daddy Boles, athletic director of the university, at a meeting held Thursday night in trophy room in the basketball building: Carey, McFarland, Underwood, helm, Hughes, Alberts, Milward and Rohs. Of these, Carey, McFarland, Underwood, Milward and Helm are members of the famous Blue Devil team of 1922. This makes the sixth letter awarded Hughes, who also has four numerals to his credit. Hughes is a native of Repton, Kentucky. Alberts is from Winchester and Rohs is from Cynthiana.

Freshman numerals were awarded to: Ropke, Jenkins, Hickerson, Steele, Sharpe, Phipps, Taylor, Berry, Mar-tin, Champ, Mohney, and Ellis.

State Track Meet Will be Held Here on May 23

With three weeks of limbering up and practice stowed under their belts, the Wildent track artists are looking forward to one of the most promising seasons that has ever heen enjoyed by a track team of this institution. "Daddy" Boles has scheduled the best teams in the south and has already expressed his willingness for the team to participate in the S. I. C. meet to be held at Sewanee this year. For the first time in the history of the institution a track team representing Kentucky will go north of the Ohio River, to compete against Indiana University at Bloomington. Each year Indiana puts out one of the best track teams in the Big Ten, and from all reports this year will be no exception.
In the S. I C. meet Kentucky will be pitted against some of the ablest is handleapping Murphy in his eftrack, men in the south, which is one forts to pick a winning aggregation reason why the 'cats are training so diligently every day. Last year in this same meet, Kentucky finished second, with only seven men comprising the squad.

Last year the team, under the tutelage of George Buchheit, finished as the best team in the state and one of the five best teams in the south. In the state inter-collegiate meet they trebled the points of their nearest rival, Centre. Had it not been for Gordy, the jumper and weight man.

Riffe and Samdes look good for a formidable pitching staff, with Henry and Goodwin showing up nicely behind the plate.

Two Berea Players Honored in Selection; Game Shows Improvement in Kentucky

SENSATION

McFarland Honored Although He Has Had Off Season

By FRANK K. HOOVER

Chief among basketball surprises of the past season was that of the Berca College net team. Ranked by many to finish the season as they had been in the habit of finishing-many games behind—the squad showed a "smartness" that made all Kentucky teams step when they encountered them in a game and consequently their players have cut quite a figure in all-Kentucky selections of col-legiate teams by Kentucky sports writers.

Picking "All-" teams has become a habit with sports writers and the Kernel comes forth today with its all-Kentucky after so long a time. Of course, the world will little know nor long remember, but nevertheless we are satisfying our greenish desire to "pick one of 'em."

Right off the reel we are favoring our own Alma Mater. Some might we are selfish but it appears to us that none in Kentucky stack those who know these men,ETAOIN with McFarland and Underwood with These two forwards drew high praise in the southern tournament at Atlanta this year. chosen Maggard, lanky Berca forward, who, although not a finished player, showed much playing sense against strong teams. He was a great scorer for his team and put it in the running many times when apparently had lost the game.

We have placed Covington, of Centre, and Wright, of Berea, on our team at center. The former, although he did not get into mang games during the season, showed though he did not get into mang games during the scason, showed enough form during his stay to merit him a place on the squad. Always good at long shots, he can shoot equally as well from the foul line or from under the basket and is always "on his man." Underwood's playing resembles that of McFarland, although Cowboy pulled more points this year than did McFarland. Underwood had a tendency to lose his man on a few occasions, but so seldom did this ocgames, but Centre was never able to Carey.
